“ I have been thinking of you Jon through the years. I miss you and your family. I love them like my own. I haven't talked tp your brothers Dpm or Cory, or your father Ritchard. You all where a big part of growing up with me. I love you Jon. Your a brother to me, and a true friend. I will be moving soon to Washington states in September. I wish I could see your family before I leave. I married Jessica. I wish you where there.##imported-begin##robby oddo and jessica oddo##imported-end##

“ Jon and I met under unique circumstances. Our group of friends had lots of crazy times together. There were many nights of wrestling matches, cups of ramen noodles, prank phone calls, and general silly teenage antics. I always had a crush on him but I don't think he knew. I had no idea that the last time I saw him would be the last time forever. I hadn't spoken to him for about two years when I heard what happened through the grapevine. We knew that Jon had problems but we didn't know what to do about them so we pretended they didn't exist. The group parted on bad terms and I hope the people who cared about him the most know that what happened wasn't anybody's fault. I wanted to drive up to the area where Jon last lived to visit the cemetary and bring flowers or something but I understand that there is no grave to visit. Yesterday was the two year anniversary of Jon's death. I still find it hard to believe that he is gone. I hope his son is doing well as well as the rest of his family, who I never had the pleasure of meeting. I think of him often and I wish I was able to say goodbye. We had great times together.##imported-begin##Stephanie##imported-end##

“ Jon was my closest friend, and I spent the last 4 years with him here in prescott valley az. Its October third 2005. and I still can't go one week without braking down. He used to come over every day and we'd ride around in his camero or truck listening to music, or working on cars together. Jon would spend alot of time making projects like building a table to hold his sword collectables for show, an unfinnished project. and also was into tribal drawings. He also had a adventurous side where we would go to the Granit Dells mountains, and climb for hours, chucking rocks, and talking about our problems. we counceled each-other about everything. I started to let work interfere with hanging out, and it leasened time for friends. Jon stopped over my house, a couple days before it happend. And brought his girlfriend Kayla with him, There wasnt to much to talk about, he just stopped by for a little while and invited me over this weekend. I miss him very much. He was the best friend I ever had. I still look for him for advice, and for a friend every once in a while. even though I know hes not here. His personality still lingers in my life. I love you brother, your friend Robby##imported-begin##Robby L. Oddo##imported-end##
